Local Briefs

Council sets budget workshops

Whatever is in the Mayor's proposed budget, the council now knows.

Mayor William Oakley last week submitted his budget for the 1982-83 fiscal year to council for scrutiny and council set up workshops for April 15 and April 20 to study his recommendations.

A public hearing will be scheduled sometime in May so that residents may offer input.

City honors Kiwanis

Romulus' Kiwanis Club was honored last week by a city proclamation approved unanimously by council.

Mayor William M. Oakley asked citizens to support the local club whose members participate in various projects throughout the community, including donating to the Michigan Kidney Foundation, the Boy Scouts, St. Jude Children's Hospital, 4-H Club, Wolverine Boys State and many others.

The Kiwanians will host the annual Pancake Festival on Sat., April 24 for the purpose of supporting the Mental Program for indigent children.

April 24 has been set aside as "Romulus Kiwanis Club Festival Day".

Civil Air Patrol lauded

Members of the Civil Air Patrol received "letters of gratitude" for their part in the recent all-night Easter Seals Telethon. Club members manned the phones and recorded the donations.

"It was a rewarding experience," said St. Col. Joan Webster, who is commander of the local squad. "Not only was it a rewarding experience but it also gave us tremendous pride in our people in Wayne County who are hard-hit by the economy but still managed to contribute to this worthy cause."

Baseball tryouts set

Tryouts for the major and senior divisions of the Romulus South Little League will be held on Saturday April 17, at Halecreek Elementary School, 16200 Harrison Road, Romulus.

Major tryouts will be at 9 a.m., with Senior tryouts at 1 p.m.

'Great Debate' cancelled

The proposed debate between the City of Romulus and officials of the DetRoRecovery Products, Inc. was "officially" called off last week.

Councilman Barry Baumann, who had originally asked the city to organize a debate between the two parties, moved to rescind his motion at last week's council meeting.

DetRo is proposing to build a sludge-to-fertilizer plant on a 240-acre parcel of land located west of the City Hall. Its proposal has run into legal opposition by the city and residents who fear the plant and its products may contaminate the environment.

Addressing council, Baumann said: "I would like to address an issue under the Mayor's Report. I would like to make a motion at this time that we rescind a previous action (by council) which we made at the March 22 meeting."

"Upon recommendations of our legal counsel, I am asking that the proposed meeting between our city and DetRo be cancelled."

Michael H. Feiler, attorney for the city who is handling the city's case in court against DetRo's proposal, advised the city by letter that it was not in the best interests of the city to hold the meeting.

In that letter Feiler stated: "I doubt whether it would be in the best interests of the City to have attend (the meeting), and indeed, I doubt whether it would be in the best interests of the City to have this meeting at all. At present time we have obtained an interim stay of proceedings which means that neither DetRo (nor I would assume, any of the other agencies involved can take further action with regard to site plan approval, building permits and the like."

"It would seem that the scheduling of such a meeting as contemplated would be in effect to obviate our own request that nothing further happen on this matter vis-a-vis DetRo and the various agencies until such time as the appeal is finally disposed of."

DetRo officials came under sharp criticism by Baumann and councilman Jimmie Raspberry for articles that appeared in an issue of a newsletter the company is publishing.

"In the article," Baumann earlier said, "It appears as if I am in favor of the DetRo project. I am categorically against it. I have made my position clear from the beginning. If we bring that dump here, who would want to live in a community with a huge sludge plant? Would young people move in? Would new businesses come in? I think not. What would happen is that this community would inevitably die. I love Romulus and I will continue to fight for the citizens of this city."

Raspberry pointed out that when the recent newsletter appeared residents phoned him and questioned him about Baumann's stance on DetRo.

"Some of my neighbors telephoned me and said the paper appears to say that Baumann was in favor of DetRo. To the contrary, I will defend my colleague for he has stated unequivocally that he is against the project."

Council voted to meet in executive session to discuss the DetRo matter with Feiler. That meeting was to take place before Council's regular meeting last night.

'Roll-back' sought Council readies for tax wars

Romulus City Council will not take the recent property tax assessment increases without a fight.

Council unanimously voted last week to inform the State Tax Commission and the Wayne County Board of Commissioners via a resolution that "the city can't in these depressed economic times stand idly by and digest the rise in residential property hikes."

In a resolution offered by Mayor Pro Tem Mary Ann Banks, the council unanimously adopted a "we've just begun to fight" philosophy to the increases.

Based on the resolution offered by Mrs. Banks, and directed to the State Tax Commission, and also to George McEachran, Director, Bureau of Taxation, Wayne County, to Senator William Faust, State Rep. Edward Mahalak, State Rep. Gary Owen, and JoLynn DeBuysscher, local tax assessor, the city urges the county and state to reconsider the burden it has placed on the already tax-burdened citizens by the recent increases.

"The Romulus City Council does hereby protest the rising residential property assessments in the State of Michigan and the state policy which calls for a 30-12 month study of real estate prices to determine equalized valuation," Mrs. Banks' original resolution said.

"Because of the state's depressed economy and housing market," the

The 1982 Easter Seals campaign got a boost from local tavern owners and patrons. The patrons who donated at the tavern have their name placed on a certificate called a "Bar Buck". The certificates are hung on the wall in the establishment.

"Chop's New Boston Inn" on Huron River Dr. in New Boston and the "Orchard Grove" on Middlebelt Rd. at Sibley have the wall behind the bar covered with "Bar Bucks".

The New Boston Rotary Club annually sponsors the Easter Seals drive. This year's Co-chairmen are Police Chief Joseph Carney and Bob Grozenski, Manager for the Security Bank in New Boston.

The Chairmen wish to thank Ed

Dulecki and Bob Carey of the Rotary for distributing and promoting the "Bar Bucks" and especially B.J. Neal at the "New Boston Inn" and Chriss Francis at the "Orchard Grove" and of course at those patrons who donated.

The group sold "Lillies" at the intersection of Huron River Dr. & Hannan Rd. all day Saturday, and hoped to raise over $1000.

Motion stirs controversy

Pay raises may be dead... but debate is resurrected

Although the proposal to increase the city's top three elected officials' salaries have been put to rest by council, the recommendation remains a controversy.

Councilman Pete Bergeron asked council last week to strike several of the adjectives from the recommendation offered by councilman Jimmie Raspberry, arguing that the verbiage violated Roberts' Rule of Order.

Approval of council's previous proceedings stirred the debate.

Bergeron feels that the words "unjust, untimely, excessive and not in the best interests of the people of the city" were words offered during the discussion of the motion and was not in the motion and, accordingly to Roberts Rules of Order therefore should not appear with the motion.

Raspberry countered that he made the motion and definitely knew what he said.

"I'm not questioning the maker of the motion saying it," Bergeron replied. "I'm questioning whether that's part of the motion. Being unjust, excessive, untimely and not in the best interests of the people of Romulus (came) in discussion of the motion and you're not supposed to say anything about the motion until it's supported."

Raspberry chastised his colleague by pointing out "that during the first meeting of the council he (Bergeron) didn't even know where he could get a Roberts Rules of Order (book), now he's suddenly become an expert."

"I made this motion and after it was supported I also pointed out during the discussion that I felt there was some violation of law, that the alleged violation took place when the Compensation Committee failed to post or publish their intentions of holding a meeting."

The controversy ended when Raspberry asked and received council support (with Bergeron dissenting) to approve the council minutes as presented."

Brueck blasts proposed tax hike

The executive director of the Romulus Chamber of Commerce today lashed out at Governor Milliken's proposed hike in the state income tax.

"I am talking to business people everyday and as a member of the Board of Review for the City of Northville which spans two counties I can assure you that there is no support for any tax increase," wrote Robert F. Brueck, executive director of the local chamber.

"There is no support for any tax increase at the present time..."

Bob Brueck

"Business people are saying that you don't cure a recession by increasing taxes and homeowners can't understand how property taxes (assessments) can be increasing when real estate values are declining," Brueck noted.

Brueck warned that the state would continue to plummet into the depths of depression if present fiscal policies of the state and nation were not changed.

"The general public can't understand how or why Michigan, the 'Wonder Welfare State', should continue to play higher benefits to welfare recipients than our four neighboring states," added Brueck.

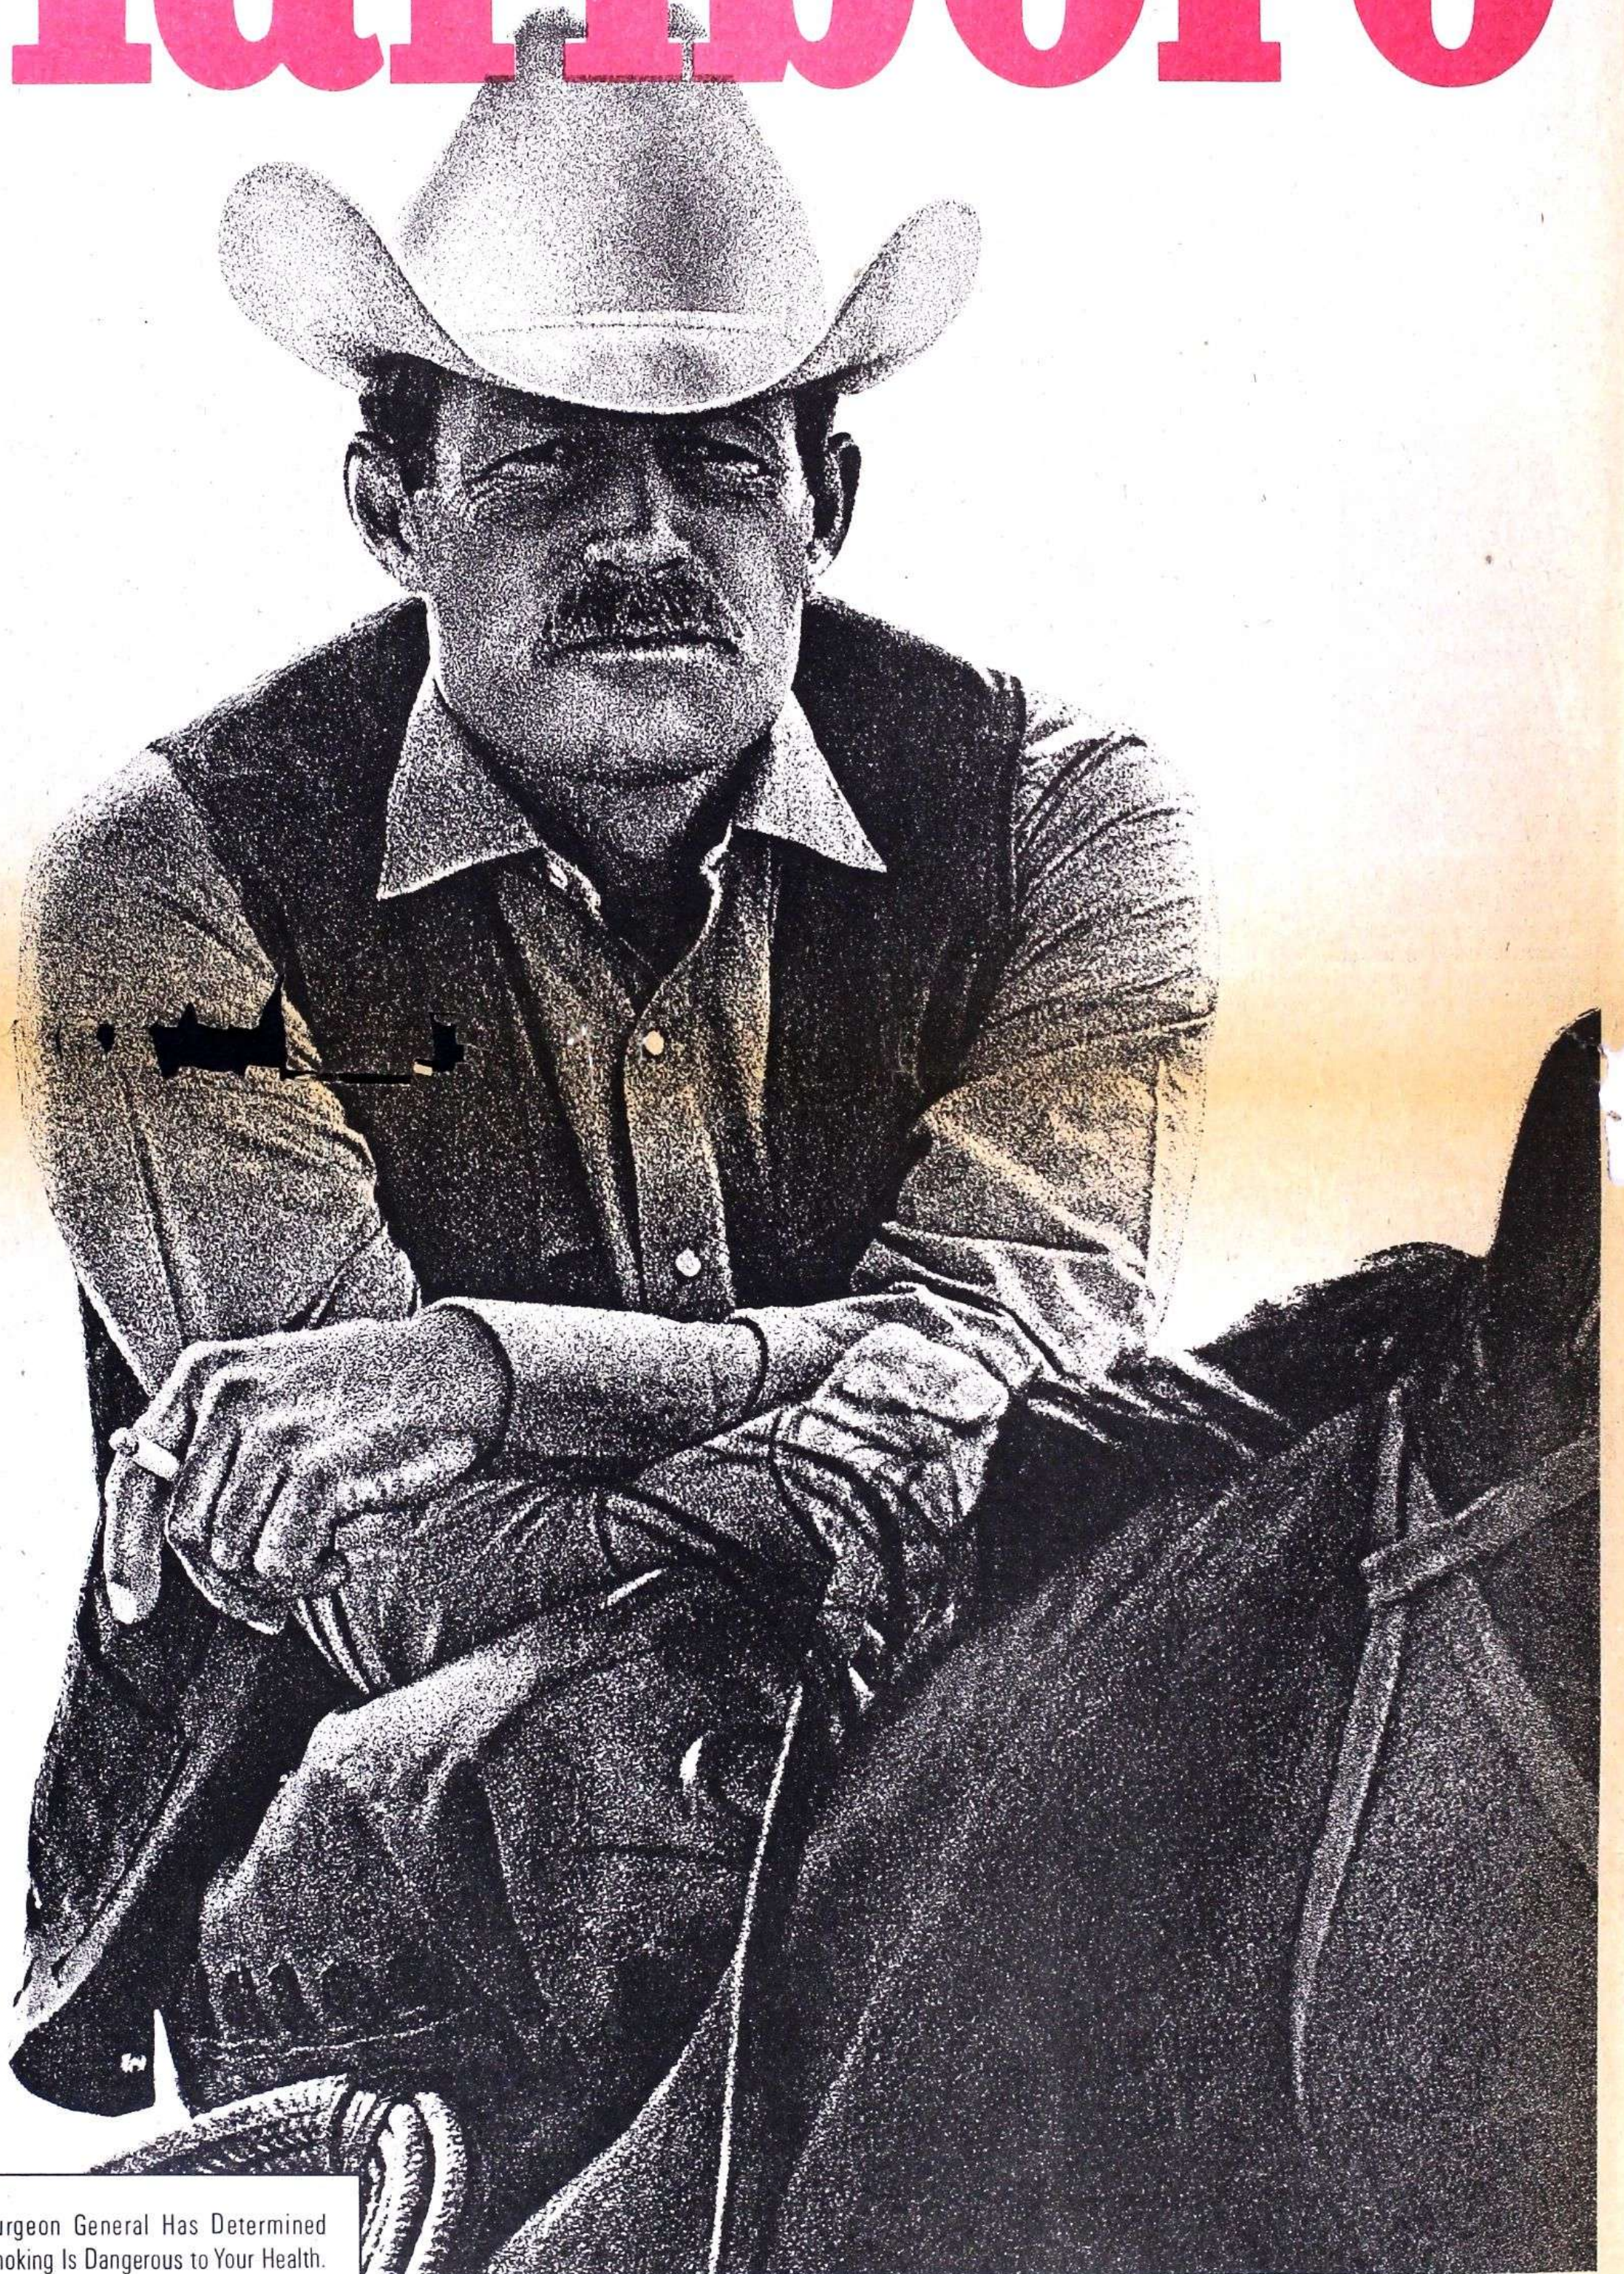

"Or why our unemployment compensation should be so high that there is no incentive for the recipient to accept a suitable but lower paying work. As long as the legislature is willing to fund public assistance of a rate higher than education, you can't expect public support of any tax increase — even temporary."

By a narrow margin, the House of Representatives recently gave its stamp of approval for the tax increase, raising it from 4 to 5 percent. The Senate is yet to act upon the measure.

Brueck points out to the Governor "that most people are willing to make a sacrifice, if it's a necessity, but they want to see equality of sacrifice. State employees also want equality of sacrifice and the best way to demonstrate this would be for you (Governor Milliken) to lead the way and recommend a roll-back of the January 1, 1982 increases on salary and benefits accepted by elected state officials and the legislators."

S.O.S.

Group seeks welfare reform in state

Nancy Clark believes the State of Michigan has become a "Welfare Wonderland".

Mrs. Clark and a group called "Save Our State (SOS)" have launched a petition drive to change that. Appearing recently before the Belleville-Van Buren Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. Clark detailed how the turnabout would take place.

"I've seen 'Michigan-Welfare Wonderland' bumper stickers in my county," Mrs. Clark said, "and after investigating the situation, our group has learned that people are actually moving into Michigan for the higher welfare payments."

"That's encouraging non-productive citizens to locate here, and this state had 67.7 percent more recipients of public assistance than the average of our adjacent states."

Mrs. Clark would not place the blame on the recipient for taking advantage of the situation, "but on the state and the state officials who would tolerate such a situation."

In an effort to change the formula for such assistance, the Save Our State Committee is seeking 300,000 signatures before May 26 to place the issue on the November general election ballot. Mrs. Clark said.

The Welfare Limitation Petition calls for the initiation of legislation to "provide that the state shall not pay welfare benefits at a rate higher than the average of the maximum ADC payment rates applicable in eligible families of equal size in the adjacent states."

According to Mrs. Clark, a Berrien County commissioner from Benton Harbor, such a proposal would save the state some $200 million in expenditures each year. Copies of the petition are available at the Chamber of Commerce office as well as most local chamber headquarters.

"We're showing the state one way to save money," said Mrs. Clark. "The rich get richer nowadays, the poor get richer and the middle class pays the bill. It happens because the middle class or so-called silent majority isn't organized."

Mrs. Clark supplied the chamber members with the following comparisons based on average monthly assistance payments to families in October of 1980, which showed Michigan as paying an average of $391.80. That amount rates higher than the following states: Ohio ($251.58), a 56 percent increase for Michigan residents; Indiana ($205.08), 91 percent; Illinois ($277.46), 41 percent; Wisconsin ($387.28), one percent; and Minnesota ($351.00), 12 percent with an average payment in adjacent states of $283.64, 38 percent lower than Michigan's.

Since the petition drive was launched in September, some 32,000 signatures have been gathered, almost entirely from the state's southwestern region. Members of the Save Our State Committee are hopeful that a recently started statewide campaign will generate voter support.

To date the petition has prompted numerous supporters and opponents, Mrs. Clark revealed last week. Among those against the proposal are various state legislators and the state's Department of Social Services.

Included among the organizations that have endorsed the welfare petition are the Michigan Association of Counties and the Michigan Township Association, Mrs. Clark pointed out.

"The Legislature does not want to take money from the poor," she declared, "so they take money from the middle class and from a number of important programs. A Senate bill that would put our payments in line with other states has been stuck in committee for a couple years."

"Yet Michigan spends $170 per capita on education versus $257 per capita on social services."

Further information on the goals of the Save Our State petition efforts can be obtained by writing the organization at P.O. Box 374, St. Joseph, Michigan 49085. The group's phone number is (616) 983-1981.

"Our proposal won't solve all the state's problems," Mrs. Clark concluded, "but it's a step in the right direction. People in nearby states are obviously not starving to death because of lower payments. It should also be noted that these payments are not the only benefits provided to those in need."

Welfare reform is issue

In town recently to explain her group's motivations for welfare reform was Nancy Clark (center), the co-chairman of a petition drive aimed to bring reform in welfare to Michigan. In an effort to change the formula for welfare assistance, the "Save Our State Committee," which Mrs. Clark represents, is seeking 300,000

Inkster to close Recreation complex due to $300,000 deficit

A sharply-divided City Council Monday night wrestled with a financial crisis that could reach a shortfall of $300,000 by July 1 and possibly cause payless paydays for city employees.

After a lively hour-long discussion and several caustic exchanges between council members, they voted 6-1 to approve City Manager Wylie Williams' organizational changes that would lay off 24 city employees. Willie Johnson cast the lone dissenting vote.

Included in the number losing jobs are eight police officers and two clerical workers in the department, five of the six employees in the Parks and Recreation Department, one court employee and five workers in the Department of Public Service.

The plan also called for laying off three firefighters, but that union's contract stipulates "minimal manning" numbers and the court issued an injunction Friday forbidding the city to lay off the three firefighters.

Other drastic cuts include the closing of the city's ice rink, the closing of the Malcolm X Community Center and a sharp reduction in the number of hours the Recreation Complex is open.

The "bombshell" item was listed inconspicuously under new business as: "Approval of the organizational changes and the appropriate personnel transactions as recommended by the City Manager." The discussion started with the announcement that the city's ice rink would be closed because it was losing money. Then mention was made of reducing the hours of the Recreation Complex and the layoffs of several policemen.

Councilman Jim Collier said that some council members had not received the City Manager's memo on the organizational changes outlining layoff of 24 city employees.

Council prepares for tax wars

resolution continues, "we implore you to review the state formula now implemented to determine the equalized valuation and consider a more appropriate method which will be fair and equitable to the already over-burdened taxpayer and which will take into consideration the economic times," the resolution concluded.

In a report to Council from the Board of Review and signed by Mrs. DeBuysscher, more than 503 taxpayers passed by the board to seek tax relief. The Board of Review adjourned its March session on March 31. During the time that the Board was in session, 503 taxpayers discussed their personal tax problems with three person panel.

"The Board of Review was able to make adjustments to approximately 60 percent of those who appealed," Mrs. DeBuysscher said.

"These were primarily made for those individuals who expressed an undue hardship, and demonstrated an inability to pay the State mandated increase. "Other adjustments were made where a particular property appeared to be over-assessed after the application of the factor was applied."

The local assessor pointed out that the Board met with more taxpayers this year than even in the reassessment year. "I found the people to be reasonable and acted responsibly, allowing us time to see everyone who so desired." She concluded by saying she was in support of the resolution in opposition to "Equalization" as I believe the formula used to determine equalization doesn't in fact treat every property equally."

One resident who came away from the Board of Review frustrated was former city councilman Ray Cantrell, Sr. who told Council that his property assessment "is out of line with those in his immediate area."

"When I was on council the Board (of Review) told me 'it wouldn't look good if we gave you an adjustment because I was on Council' Cantrell said, "and now that I'm off the council, I find that I can't get any satisfaction from them at all."

"What do I do? How can anyone stand outside a house and determine how much footage of living space I have inside?" Cantrell argued. "I do not want anything more than what my neighbors are getting and what is fair. That's all I'm asking."

Councilman Jimmie Raspberry agreed that "one can't stand outside (a building) and assess what is or what is not inside that structure."

A second resident, Harry Nelson, approached council on another tax question. Nelson wanted to know what the city and council were doing to block tax increases.

"In regards to the recent property tax increase we had in Romulus," Nelson asked, "I would like to know if the mayor or council or any elected official in Romulus took any action to stop this increase."

Mrs. Banks informed Nelson of the Council resolution, but Nelson countered that the motion was after the fact. "Did any one do anything before the hike?"

Raspberry replied: "You don't protest something before it happens. The County Bureau of Taxation had to meet to set the factor, and now we're protesting it. Macomb rolled back its taxes 10 percent and we're asking the Bureau of Taxation to modify our factor."

Real Estate

Clems move to heart of Belleville

By LEE SMITH
ANP Staff Writer

There's a brand new sign with a catchy logo — that of Clem Professionals — calling attention to 397 Main Street in Belleville. The real estate firm, headed by Linda Clem, broker, and Dan Clem, associate, also employs Carol Bird and Beverly Clarke-Baltz. Ron Hink, who is in the process of obtaining his license, will soon join the group. All are competent, highly trained, dedicated professionals who have been involved constantly in educational programs to keep abreast of the ever-changing real estate market.

Implementing changes in its business life-style to better serve the public, Clem's move from Haggerty Road to the heart of Belleville was a major breakthrough in attracting business. The new location (formerly NBD and then Keim) has increased the firm's exposure over 5,000 percent.

"The second change," Dan Clem said, "was dropping Realty World from our name and becoming Clem Professionals. We've created a fresh, exclusive look with our new logo and signs and already feel the benefits gained from establishing an exclusive area identity which prospective purchasers and other Multi-List realtors can relate to. It's a tremendous advantage."

And, yes, Clem's is still active in the Multi-List and is a full-service realtor despite dropping the franchise. In fact, it's a 1981 member of the UNRA Multi-List Top 10 Percent Club for sales in excess of one million dollars.

One of the biggest features offered to clients is an attractive display wall of color photographs showing the interiors and exteriors of some 60 homes and condos which the firm has listed. There are from 10 to 20 shots of each property with prices ranging from $29,000 to $335,000. Clem's also can boast of having the finest selection of lake homes in the area.

The photo display board benefits both the seller and buyer in that it can eliminate time-consuming house visits right on the spot; purchasers can often tell just by studying the pictures whether they'll be interested in a house or condominium.

"Sales have increased," Clem answered when asked how the market is, "we're selling at least one house a week and that's really encouraging. Prospective buyers should be aware that 95 percent of all sales are on land contracts or assumptions and that interest is 11 percent."

A second side to Clem Professionals is its sales agency for Gator Construction of Belleville which deals with custom homes in the $50,000 to $500,000 price range. "Gator, owned by Ron Hink and Douglas Cullin, is available for those who want a particular house but can't seem to find it," Clem said. "since they can sit down and draw up customized designs for the buyer."

Office hours for the firm are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday; 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday. A personal answering service takes calls daily from 8:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. so Clem's can be reached just about anytime — still another service.

You should take a good look at that logo we've been mentioning since it contains a cleverly constructed "message." Ron Hink was the "architect."

Seminar's subject is home buying

If you are looking forward to buying a home in the next few years, plan on attending a free seminar on the subject scheduled at Northland Center, Tuesday, April 20 and Westland Center, Thursday, April 22.

Offered as a public service by the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors, the non-selling presentations provide a range of basic information on home buying from saving for a downpayment to financing options.

Beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the centers' Community Rooms, a panel of experts also will cover such topics as home affordability, tax benefits, credit records, qualifying for a loan, assuming a mortgage, use of land contracts and the services of Realtors and attorneys.

The hour-long presentation is followed by an open-end question and answer period and complimentary information kits are provided. To avoid overcrowding, persons planning to attend either session are asked to reserve seats by calling 478-1700. Previous seminars in other locations have drawn capacity audiences.

"We recognize that current economic conditions have forced many prospective buyers out of the market," said Lloyd Mason, WWOCBR president. "At the same time, we don't think they should abandon home ownership planning. Our seminars are designed to prepare prospective buyers to understand the market and select the right time to make a move."

"The two shopping centers have been generous in joining us in sponsoring these educational programs through use of their meeting rooms. Both provide convenient and familiar locations for large audiences who can benefit from attending one of the sessions."

WWOCBR the largest Realtor board in the state, covers a 1,600 square mile territory including Northwest Detroit and major portions of Wayne, Oakland and Livingston Counties. The seminars are part of the Board's observance of Private Property Week, April 18-24.

County beefs up Youth Home staff

Mindful of on-going arrests of juveniles involved in drug-related crimes at the Jefferies Housing Development in downtown Detroit, Wayne County Commissioners Thursday approved an increase in Youth Home staffing as the facility threatens to be overwhelmed by the police action.

administrators of the Youth Home, have left the positions vacant to meet their mandatory savings limit required to balance the 1981-82 budget.

"The facility," he said, "has been maintaining its supervision of juveniles through the use of overtime. I can see little advantage — or savings — in continuing that procedure. It will cost us just about the same whether we hire more people or pay those already on the staff for working extra hours."

The home, operated on an around-the-clock basis, houses 191 boys and 27 girls. 91 are State charges.

Commissioners Mary E. Dumas and R. William Joyner, in a joint motion, have requested a meeting with the State Department of Social Services and the Courts to determine whether present staffing and licensing procedures are antiquated.

Arrests topple pyramid scam

Three men face an April 12 date in 18th District Court in Westland on a charge of fraud, following the breakup of a pyramid scheme that had been operating in the community.

Arrested, following a raid of a home on Morley Street in Westland March 31, were William Pickins, 22, of Westland, Donald Campbell, 23 of Wayne, and Hassan Elfakie, 20, of Detroit. Four other persons were arrested in the raid under city ordinances, but were released.

According to Westland Police Lt. Dewey Combs, the arrests were the first for such a scheme in the Westland community and follow closely on the heels of the arrest of 40 persons for similar illegal operations in Oakland County.

Combs said the Police Department had received between six and eight phone calls last week in connection with the money scheme, some of whom were reporting losses of $500.

Westland Police officers, utilizing an undercover State Police officer, were able to make contact with the suspects. The undercover officer was then invited to attend a meeting at the Pickins' home on Morley Street in Westland March 30, at which time he was able to identify the captain and co-captains of the scheme.

Felony warrants were obtained, and police officers returned to the Pickins' home on March 31 to make the arrests.

According to Combs, participants were invited to join the pyramid for one of the eight slots at the base of the scheme for $500 and were guaranteed a return of $4,000 for their investment.

The three men were arraigned in

"It is my belief that many of them are now cloaked in some concept of legitimacy, but still kept secret." — Canton Police Chief Jerry Cox

18th District Court April 1 before Judge Evan Callanan. A plea of not guilty was entered on their behalf, and bond was set at $1,000 each. The threesome will be back in court on April 12 for a pre-trial examination on the fraud charge.

If convicted, the three men could face a prison sentence of up to seven years, a fine, or both.

The get-rich-quick scheme preys on those people interested in making an easy dollar, although area law enforcement officials caution that such schemes are quite illegal.

"The schemes are illegal, and the people involved know it's illegal," said Combs. "If you ask them, they'll tell you it's illegal, but they'll also tell you about all the money you can make."

The schemes are presented as sure 8-1 beats, with those involved gaining back their investment eight times over. However, in most instances the sure beat is a sure loser, with only those at the top of the pyramid getting the high yield on their investment.

In many schemes, a group of people — seven — will get together to form a pyramid, with one person on top, two on the second level and four at the third level.

Eight persons are recruited to fill out the bottom slots, each contributing an exact amount of money, in the Westland case, $500.

That money is collected by the person at the top of the pyramid, who then vacates that spot. The remaining pyramid then divides equally in half, forming two pyramids, with new players of the first pyramid required to find two more players each.

The pyramid keeps splitting with each payoff, and eventually those on the bottom reach the top spot for their big payoff, but in most cases, the pyramid collapses before those on the bottom get to the top.

While Cox feels that the concept of a small, local non-criminal individual is involved in some of the schemes, he sees such operations "as a doorway to the individual with organized dollars to invest."

"The more money involved, the larger the dollar amount, the more attractive these things are to the criminal element," he said.

Wayne Public Safety Director Ray LeCormu also recommends that residents be leary of such schemes, citing the old adage of "You don't get something for nothing."

"Money doesn't come that easy, and if it does, it's not without risks," he said.

As to the popularity of such schemes, LeCormu believes it cyclical in nature, adding that pyramid schemes, including such things as letters containing quarters, patterns and even Savings Bonds, have been around for years.

He doesn't believe the schemes are attracting unemployed persons, but rather "those interested in making a quick $4,000."

At present Wayne has yet to have the scheme turn up, "but that could change by tonight," LeCormu said, adding that his Police Department will continue to work with Westland and State Police officers on the ongoing investigation.

Officers from the Wayne Police Department were involved in the Westland case, which resulted in not only Campbell's arrest but two other Wayne residents, one a juvenile, who were later released.

Candidates for Governor to speak at WC3

Democratic State Senator Kerry Krammer and Detroit Public Schools tacher, Tim Craine of the Socialist Workers Party are scheduled to speak at the Western Center of WC3, as candidates for Michigan State Governor.

In request for help

Lack of drainage causing road problems

Pinpointing Sumpter and Van Buren's road problems to "drainage", John P. Woodford, Director of the Department of Transportation, replied to an urgent plea by residents to solve their road problems.

Because of the harsh winter and recent rains, many local roads have been mired in mud that has bogged down motorists. In an attempt to resolve the problem, State Rep. Gary Owen (D-Ypsi) dashed off a letter to the Department of Transportation in hopes of soliciting that office's help.

Last week, Rep. Owen received a reply from Woodford, who stated in his letter that the problem residents are having with their roads are due to drainage. Here is the complete text of that letter:

Dear Representative Owen:

This is in response to the requests in your letter of March 25 concerning the condition of the county roads in western Wayne County.

Our investigation indicates that the single most important factor in the whole problem is the lack of adequate drainage in the area. There is an old adage in the road business which states that "A road is only as good as its drainage". This maxim is as true today as when it was coined. Until something can be done about the drainage it is futile to either improve these roads or to maintain them during the spring breakup.

Most of the roads in the area are gravel surfaced and part of the county local road system. On a short term basis there is little that can be done about their condition until the roadbed drains sufficiently to allow the county road commission to replenish the gravel and grade the roads.

On a long range basis the ultimate solution is to reconstruct and pave the roads. To accomplish this however, requires:

Improvement of the county drains to provide adequate drainage.

Recognition by the townships that improving the roads would have to be funded at the local level.

Provide adequate funding to the county road commission to maintain the roads.

Statutory authority to audit county road commissions rests with the Department of Treasury. Audits are made on a regular basis and copies are transmitted to the Department. These audits do not indicate any misuse of funds by the county road commission.

I have directed the Department's Local Government Division to contact the county road commission to determine if we can be of any assistance."

Facing the challenges

assistant dean, along with students Chris Terzieff and Jackie Crawford who show off certificates they were awarded by the college. The college organized a series of seminars to help high school students learn of and be aware of the challenges that await them when they graduate from high school.

Post high school problems

Area high school leaders attend 'challenging seminar'

"Facing the Post High School Challenges" was the topic of the last in a series of four Project Outreach Student Leadership Forums, coordinated by Wayne County Intermediate School District and hosted by Wayne County Community College's Western Center.

The forums were organized for high school leaders from various high schools in the Wayne County area.

The April 7 Forum included a series of workshops which assisted students in preparing themselves for employers in areas of career decisions and potential employment.

At the forum's conclusion, leaders were awarded certificates of recognition for completing the four workshop forums.

The first forum series was held January 13 and the topic was "Becoming an Effective Leader."

Subsequent forums were held February 10 and March 10 with topics on "Building Communication Skills," and "Maximizing Your Survival Skills."

'Buy American'

Commissioner puts pressure on

Rather than depend on the Federal Government to control foreign purchases of goods and materials, Wayne County Commissioner Richard E. Manning, with the passage of his resolution last week, is advocating a grass-roots approach as a solution to unemployment and deteriorating industry.

In what may be a "shot heard round the world", Manning's "Buy American" resolution commits Wayne County—the third largest in the nation—to restrict purchases of goods and materials to only those produced by American labor.

Manning contends that many of Michigan's 742,000 unemployed would be hard at work today if all local government units had banded together in the mid 70's and limited their purchases to American manufactured goods.

In 1977 the U.S. State Department discouraged the passage of a resolution by Wayne County to restrict steel purchases to American manufacturers. "That has since proven to be a near-fatal consequence for both American industry and labor," Manning asserted.

The Wayne County Resolution is being circulated widely in the State of Michigan, including State Senate and House members, with a letter urging adoption and immediate implementation.

"If we can get governmental units across the nation to join our crusade," the Commissioner pointed out, "we can help create a powerful rebirth of American industry and job opportunities."

Should WCRC be abolished?

While searching for new ways to manage and control the semi-autonomous Wayne County Road Commission, a commission of the County Board of Commissioners has postponed asking the State Legislature to allow a charter amendment permitting voters to decide whether to abolish the three-member Board of Road Commissioners.

Under a proposal submitted last week by Commissioner Arthur M. Carter, but passed for the day by the Board's Ways and Means Committee, abolishment of the road commissioners would transfer all legislative and budget functions to the Board of Commissioners and give administrative authority to the new County Executive Officer (CEO) who will be elected in November.

As presently structured by State statute, neither the Board of Commissioners nor the CEO has authority over the road commission except that the CEO appoints the three road commissioners with approval of the Board of Commissioners. The Road Commission now has a separate budget, hires its own personnel and negotiates separate labor contracts.

The Committee did, however, approve a resolution importuning the Legislature to amend appropriate legislation to allow charter counties, such as Wayne County, to put advisory questions on primary or general election ballots. Another idea from Carter, the major intent of the proposal is also the reorganization of the Road Commission.

If approved at the State level, said Carter, voters would be asked on the ballot whether the three road commissioners should be eliminated. Continuation of the three-member Road Commission is "duplication of effort and not cost effective," and a violation of the separation of powers principle expressed in the new County Charter adopted last year, said Carter.

Among other matters considered by the Committee was a proposal to hire an outside firm for maintenance of the Sheriff's communications equipment, at a cost of $19,570 through the remainder of the fiscal year. That item also was passed for the day to allow the County Fiscal Advisor time to recommend a source of funding.

Legal Aid That new law

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Brian A. Walters is an Attorney at Law engaged in the general practice of law in Van Buren Township. By BRIAN A. WALTERS

It is now the law, as of April 1, 1982, that children must be secured in a child restraint system by the driver who transports them in a motor vehicle.

Any child who is less than four years of age must be secured in a child restraint system which meets certain Federal standards.

A child from one to four years of age, may in the alternative, be secured by a safety belt when transported in the rear seat of the motor vehicle.

The law does not apply to a non-resident driver transporting a child in this state nor to any child being nursed. The law is unclear whether the child must be actually nursing while a passenger. The law also does not apply if the motor vehicle being driven is a bus, school bus, taxicab, moped, motorcycle, or other motor vehicles not required to be equipped with safety belts.

The penalty if you are caught is not severe.

It is a civil infraction which means it is not a criminal offense. No points are added to your traffic record and no report is sent to the Secretary of State.

You can be fined up to $10.00 plus costs, however. The court will waive any fine or costs if, before the appearance date on the ticket, you supply the court with evidence of acquisition, purchase or rental of an approved child seating system.

4-H scholarships available

Two Wayne County college-bound 4-Hers may be eligible this year for $1,000 scholarships donated by the Edwin T. Meredith Foundation.

"To qualify, candidates must be present or former 4-H members who plan to enroll as freshmen at an accredited college or university this fall," said Connie Testorelli, Wayne County 4-H Program assistant.

Scholarship winners are chosen by the Cooperative Extension Service on the basis of interest in pursuing a college education, financial need, high school grades, leadership abilities and 4-H background.

This college scholarship program is one of several arranged by the National 4-H Council, a non-profit organization supporting the 4-H program of the Cooperative Extension Service.

Young people interested in applying should contact Ms. Testorelli, County Assistant, at 721-6576 or contact the State 4-H Office, 175 S. Anthony Hall, Michigan State University, East Lansing 48824.

Through screening program

700 seniors discover good health

More than 700 senior citizens from Western and Downriver Wayne County took up the challenge to "Discover Good Health!" during the past six months through a free health screening program offered by Peoples Community Hospital Authority (PCHA).

The second half of year-long program begins in April, and again PCHA is urging persons 60 and older in out-Wayne County to "Discover Good Health!". During the next six months, free health screenings will be offered at 26 community locations.

The full screening includes vision, hearing, glaucoma, blood pressure, respiration and TB testing, plus breast exam, blood chemistry or urinalysis, and information and counseling on a number of health subjects.

Health testing is done by a team of hospital professionals from the four participating PCHA units — Annapolis in Wayne, Heritage in Taylor, Outer Drive in Lincoln Park, and Seaway in Trenton. Seaway joined the program this month.

Other agencies contributing personnel, equipment and/or services to the program are the Optometric Institute and Clinic of Detroit, the Greater Detroit Society for the Blind, Superior Courier Service, the hospital Auxiliaries and the American Cancer Society. Several health organizations donate literature.

They're top spellers

When it comes to spelling, Romulus' Carmen Reed proved she's tops. Carmen captured first place honors at Romulus Community Schools District Spelling Bee championship recently. She is being congratulated by Dr. William Bedell,

Carmen Reed wins Spelling Bee honors

It was exciting. Challenging. And for Beverly Elementary School's Carmen Reed - it was also an afternoon to "always remember."

Carmen defeated some 32 participants at the first district Spelling Bee staged in Romulus to emerge with the district title. Each of the eight Romulus elementary schools sent their top winners from the fifth-sixth spelling contest to compete in the district.

Carmen was the winner, followed by Jason Segur and Kimberly Lyles, both of Barth Elementary. Judges were Beverly McAnally, City Treasurer, Diane Huzen, City Librarian, and Linda Bradford, Junior High School Counselor.

Superintendent William Bedell presented the trophies and certificates to participants.

Speech teachers Becky Oz and Kathy Robinson pronounced the

Romulus plans Career Day

If you were in high school today, what career would you pursue after graduation?

And what will the job market look like a few years down the road?

The answer to these and other questions will be answered for Romulus High juniors who take part in a unique career guidance and educational planning experience during the week of April 19 through April 23.

During the week of April 19-23, all Juniors at Romulus will have an opportunity to participate in a career guidance and educational planning experience, the ACT Career Planning Program.

The CPP is designed to help students make better decisions about their education and career plans. Mrs. Jackson at Romulus High School points out "that national studies reflect that 11th grade students rank help with career planning as their most important need. It is in response to this need that Romulus High is providing the opportunity for students to participate in the Career Planning Program."

Blood drive scheduled in Romulus

The Red Cross is in desperate need of blood. To help the organization, the "Helping Hand" of Romulus is sponsoring a community-wide Bloodmobile Drive from 1 to 7 p.m., Mon., April 26.

Prospective donors are urged to show up at the Romulus Community United Methodist Church, corner of Olive and Bibbins Streets. For further information, please telephone Florence Klein at 941-5323.

Workshop schedules

The YWCA of Western Wayne will offer new help for laid-off teachers through a workshop entitled "EDUCATORS JOB CHANGE WORKSHOP."

The exciting, information packed workshop is specifically designed to help today's educators who are considering a job change by choice or have been "pink slipped."

Jackie Lichty, a former Detroit area teacher who successfully switched her career into the business world will conduct the workshop. She is also the author of a new book entitled The Educator's Job Change Manual.

Jackie will answer the following questions: How can I decide what I really want to do? How can I find out what jobs are available in this tight job market? What are some other career areas that can best utilize my teaching skills? Where can I find a job that will pay me what I'm making now? What are the three worst mistakes teachers make and how to avoid them.

The workshop will be held on May 4, 6:30 p.m. - 9:30 p.m. at the YWCA of Western Wayne County - 26279 Michigan Ave. There is a cost of $25 for non-members, $20 members. To register call 561-4100. Pre-paid reservations must be received by April 30.

major in college. My high school parole officer couldn't believe it. In theology, I dealt with deep philosophical questions like "If God is good, why is there dandruff?" or "When the world ends will there be a two-minute warning?" Of course, the age old question, which has puzzled theologians is, "Is there life after death?" Pragmatists answer "No." Clergy men answer "Yes." Attorneys answer "absolutely possible", and doctors just don't answer.

But the question which doctors in particular are being asked to answer more and more is "Is there life after recovering from a heart attack?" and the answer is, "Absolutely, definitely, incontrovertibly YES!"

I once over heard one of my cardiology professors at medical school tell a man who was just recovering from a heart attack, "The most vigorous activity I want you to do with your wife for the next 15

County offers 45 acres of land, hospital buildings for sale

A committee of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners is recommending an "as is" sale of 45 acres of the County General Hospital complex, including several old unused buildings already recommended for demolition.

The buildings and land parcel that the Board's Human Resources Committee would offer for sale is between the River Rouge and Michigan Avenue east of Merriman Road.

According to the County Board of Auditors, the unoccupied buildings have bad plumbing systems, heating and electrical problems and the City of Westland considers them a fire hazard.

Although the Board of Commissioners has authorized the seeking of bids for razing the structures, costing an estimated $750,000, the Human Resources' plan is a better approach, said Committee Chairman Thomas Presnell.

"If we sell the land, we probably won't realize any cash, but at least it won't cost us anything," he explained. "If we don't have to spend, that amounts to saving cash."

Presnell said that a developer who buys the land can "do whatever they want with the buildings," either demolish them or renovate for other uses.

A few buildings on the tract now house offices of the Sheriff, Office of Emergency Preparedness, Office on Aging and court administration. These services would be moved to other buildings closer to the newer hospital facilities consolidated north of the river.

Views On Dental Health

By PHILIP MEIZELS, D.D.S.

DENTAL INSURANCE DOLLAR COVERAGE

As a rule, dental insurance plans do not pay for the full cost of dental care. They are designed to reduce the cost of care, not to eliminate it entirely. This enables them to offer a broader dental plan at economic rates. Some of the most common methods of payment limitation are:

1. Deductible. Like your auto insurance, this method requires that you pay a specified dollar amount toward your bill before insurance coverage begins.

2. Co-Payment. With this method, the insurance company assumes responsibility for a specified percentage of the bill for covered dental services, leaving the remainder to be paid by you.

3. Dollar Limit. This system requires that you pay the difference between the company's limit for a service and your dentist's fee.

Some programs use "pre-certification". If this is a part of your program, your dentist will submit your treatment plan and the fees to the insurance company for review. The company will then note exactly which services are covered and what the company will pay.

Diapers to diploma — descendants cost dollars

By SUE BACHAND
ANP Staff Writer

The delivery schedule is erratic, there are no guarantees, no warranty and exchange or refund is impossible—yet babies are more popular than ever. Experts maintain we are in a baby-boom era, with the birth rate in the U.S. rising markedly in the past few years.

Recently, Michigan State University Information Services compiled a study of child rearing costs based on data provided by the United States Department of Agriculture. While the original data was based on a 1960-61 Consumer Expenditure Survey done in cooperation with the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor, costs in this new survey were developed regionally with Michigan in the north central region.

The figures indicate that new parents may be in for quite a shock when they begin to pay for that bundle from heaven. According to Blue Cross/Blue Shield, the average hospital birth now costs approximately $2,000. That figure includes the care of both mother and infant and an obstetrical fee to the physician. The insurer estimated the hospital cost at nearly $1,400 and the doctor's fee at about $600, stressing that those are average figures and that many are higher and many lower, depending on the exact circumstances of the birth.

And, Michigan State University spokesman emphasize that the estimates they have given are as average costs only, and therefore, do not represent the total consumption costs involved in raising a child. The three levels, economy, low and moderate, are based on the spending pattern associated with the appropriate food consumption level of the USDA cost of food at home.

Raising a child from one year to the ripe old age of 17 will, according to these figures at an economy level cost $39,446. Presuming that the averages are followed, the cost of a child until 17 under the low budget figure is $57,715 and moving to a moderate income scale, more than $74,698 will be spent on child rearing in the home.

This includes items like food away from home, assuming that a 16-17 year old will need $145 per year for meals away from the home kitchen under the moderate plan. Several mothers of teenagers have questioned those statistics, along with the food at home, clothing and other categories.

The figures provided in the accompanying table are rounded off to the nearest dollar and are current dollar estimates and do not reflect prices that would actually occur during an 18-year period. All figures are based on prices today and do not reflect any inflationary ratio.

For your recipe file—Pear-Apple Tarts

Small enough to handle easily but large enough to satisfy the craving for a fresh fruit dessert. That describes Pear-Apple Tarts that meet the need for serving individually baked desserts. The flavor combination in these tarts is a welcome change from the traditional wedge of pie.

No time to bake tart shells from scratch? Then use a convenient package mix or purchase them. Complementary flavors of fresh pears and fresh apples are blended together with lemon juice, sugar and cinnamon candies. Quick-cooking tapioca is added to thicken the mixture and gives a delicate texture. Because quick-cooking tapioca has no flavor, it allows the natural fresh fruit flavors to come through. Once chilled, the fruit mixture can be spooned into the tart shells, garnished with prepared whipped topping and is ready to be served.

On your next market trip, select Bartlett and Anjou pears. They're ideal for Fresh Cinnamon Pear Tapioca, a delicious dessert that easily thickened with quick-cooking tapioca. This is the kind of special dessert that perks up an easy Sunday night supper.

potpourri

By Lee Smith
Suburban Living Editor

When one is fortunate enough to have a spring vacation planned and is taking off in just a matter of days, it's a bit difficult to sandwich a column between shopping and packing, cleaning the 'fridge and unloading the dryer, returning library books and fixing Easter surprises for the family, baking travel goodies and shortening golf slacks.

It's a real effort to concentrate on "potpourri" when your mind is really off in the foothills of the Cumberland Mountains, about midway on the par-5 14th hole at Druid Hills. In your fantasy you're lying two and now have to decide whether you're going to try to cross that pond (and chance ricocheting off the ledgerrock wall which gives that green its height) or play it safe and lay up. And, puffed up with the confidence that only comes with "let's pretend", you decide that THIS year you're not going to be chicken — you're going to go for the pin! Then, with two perfect putts, you par the hole and let out a "YAHOO" that shatters the tee shots of those four men behind you.

Oh, it's wonderful to have such an active imagination!! But now, old girl, it's time to come down off cloud nine and get to penning your weekly bit. Tell your readers how very lucky you feel to be escaping Michigan's spring and its downright contrariness! And maybe talk about how these yearly trips came to be. You might just as well since that's really what you mind's on.

The first time there was even a suggestion of getting away at Eastertime, it was considered with a very guilty feeling on my part. Being a very family-oriented-for-the-holidays type, this mother was in a bit of a stew trying to justify such an action. Granted, the kids were grown — one married, one in college, one in high school — but still, were we just to toss away those traditions, those special dinners and doings with loved ones?

And I'd like to say "You bet we were!" but that comes later. Right now I must explain...

... that with reservations a MUST for that popular time of the year in Myrtle Beach (the golf capitol of the nation) we weren't allowed the luxury of procrastination. In reaching our decision, though, the weather was the determining factor. It'd been a long, rotten, cold winter and one blizzard weekend we threw tradition to the howling winds and decided that no way were we going to chance a snow-covered Easter as well.

Number One Daughter (a bride of six months) assuaged our guilt and smoothed the way for us by inviting her sister, a WMU freshman, to spend the holiday week in Evanston. "Y" (youngest), a BHS junior, got to tag along and join several other teen daughters in our golf group.

And that, my friends, was the beginning of a beautiful romance with the South-at-Easter. And, without question, our return to South Carolina the following year was settled even before we left for home.

Subsequent years (which gave us reprieves from this state's iffiness) took us to Florida and some wonderful Disney World courses; to North Carolina and "the" best accommodations in the world at the Carolina Trace; to Georgia and the glory of azalea time at Calloway Gardens; then to Tennessee and spectacular scenery and two challenging courses at Fairfield Glade.

Druid and its sister links, Dorchester — enfolded in breathtaking mountains — will again be either our nemesis or our ally and make one of our "teams" the top winner in our annual tournament — all depending on how the ol' ball bounces.

SOME MORE FAMOUS ARIENS

Those born under the first sign of the Zodiac, the Arians of March 21 to April 19, set their own pace and choose their own life's work, regardless of the advice of friends and relatives. There is often some kind of estrangement between them and their parents. What they do is usually viewed as sudden or totally unexpected by conservative observers.

Some famous folks with those supposed tendencies include Ethel Kennedy, the widow of our late Secretary of State Robert Kennedy, who had her 54th birthday party (and if all the kids came home, it was a biggie) on April 11.

The next day Ann (Sugar Babes) Miller was an unbelievable 63 and David Cassidy was 32. On the 13th our third president, Thomas Jefferson, would have chalked up Number 239 if he were still around.

Today, April 14, friends will be wishing Loretta Lynn a happy 47th and Julie Christie a pleasant 42nd and drinking toasts to Rod Steiger on his 57th and Pete Rose on his milestone — Number Four-Oh.

Forty-nine candles will glow on two cakes tomorrow — one for Elizabeth (Bewitched) Montgomery and the other for Roy (Hee Haw) Clark. And on April 16 the Polish Prince, Bobby Vinton, will celebrate his 47th; Peter Ustinov his 61st and Henry Mancini his 58th.

MORE 'BOUT AVERAGE AMERICANS

• In the U.S.A. the average prostitute makes $36,000 a year, tax-free. She entered her line of work at the age of 17½. Before starting their careers, four of every five were victims of incest, rape, sexual abuse or physical abuse. Two prostitutes in three were runaways; two of five didn't finish high school; four of five support a pimp; one of three has children; and only one of eight has any money saved.

• Mr. Bell's invention makes it possible for the average American to make 1,029 telephone calls a year. Fifty-three percent of the calls are made from home phones, 46 from business phones and one percent from public phones. One call in 13 is long-distance and that average call connects people 543 miles apart and lasts eight minutes, 15 seconds.

NO SCHOOL IN MASSACHUSETTS

Next Monday, April 19, is just another day to most Americans, but up in Massachusetts it's a very special day indeed, Patriot's Day. The anniversary of the first formal encounter between colonial troops and British redcoats at Concord and Lexington, it's a legal holiday and the townspeople turn out to commemorate the colonists' valiant stand. Today's Bostonians also celebrate with the Patriot's Day Marathon race of 26 miles, 385 yards. It draws runners from all over the world and in recent years, winners have come from Japan, Mexico and Finland.

THE BOTTOM LINE: The reward for saving your money is being able to pay your taxes without borrowing.

Our Opinions

April 15-Day of reckoning

Death and taxes, as the saying goes, are the only sure bets in this life. Unfortunately, we are being taxed to death.

For many of Michigan's beleaguered taxpayers, April 15 is the day of reckoning, the deadline for filing income tax forms. And it is at this time of the year that we, the taxpaying public, are reminded again of the need to reform our system of taxation.

On the federal level, we are faced with the continuing prospects of deficit spending and loss of services. In Michigan, the Legislature is studying the governor's proposed income tax increase aimed at averting fiscal disaster.

Meanwhile, our cities and schools are losing the battle against inflation. Unless something is done soon, we are told, residents of Michigan can expect more school closings, more layoffs and less municipal services.

Where are our tax dollars going? Time after time, voters have expressed a desire to have their tax burden diminished while having government undergo a streamlining overhaul.

It hasn't happened. Government has been cut in size to a degree but not enough to make a substantial difference. And taxes remain a sore spot in the pocketbook of Middle America.

Sure, property owners continue to complain. Boards of Review across the area recently were bombarded with citizen complaints regarding their property tax assessments. The amount of cases heard by these boards approached all-time records.

"Taxation without representation" was once an appropriate plaining for years about tax loopholes for the wealthy, increasing strains on those who can least afford it. And the lack of accountability on the part of those who spend these tax dollars.

"Taxation without representation" was once an appropriate battle cry. On April 15, 1982 this cry could easily be resurrected.

Have our elected officials misread the mood of this state and this country? Has the time come for a reversal in the trend towards more and more taxes?

Our elected officials should ponder on these types of questions before they enact another piece of tax legislation. Voters are waiting for their response.

Hilldenbrand Report

The street people—million strong, whose problem are they?

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the first of a two-part series written by contributing columnist Bernard F. Hilldenbrand who explores the nation's growing ranks of homeless people, estimated to number between 500,000 to 1 million.)

By BERNARD F. HILLENBRAND

True story. One cold winter day a secretary in the State Department phoned the office of a program that fights alcoholism among federal workers. The secretary is greatly distressed by a homeless man living on the heating grate outside her window.

Well, being the humane sort, the program coordinator passes the problem on to a volunteer at State, who happens to be a reformed alcoholic and an official of most senior rank.

So the diplomat dons his Homberg, buttons a well-tailored overcoat over his three-piece suit, adds a muffler and marches out to the street. Settling down Indian-style beside his man, he begins the classic tale of hitting bottom, reform and rebirth, in the end inviting his new-found friend to join him in glorious sobriety.

Throughout all this our disheveled grate-dweller has listened politely. He replies by saying, "No, thank you." He is not in fact an alcoholic. He is, however, delighted the gentleman has overcome HIS problem.

So who's got the problem? The grate-dweller — or those of us distressed seeing him freeze, and perhaps, freeze to death?

The nation's growing ranks of homeless people, estimated to number between 500,000 and 1 million, have no constituency, no advocates and no elected representatives. They neither vote nor pay taxes. Their families and friends are too poor, too frustrated, or ashamed to speak for them. And the homeless seem to prefer the freedom street life provides — along with cold, hunger and violence — to the bureaucratic requirements of welfare, imprisonment or sobriety. They usually reject our most valiant efforts to help.

The moral of the grate-dweller's story is not that society should merely look the other way. We must find ways to help street people — what ever their needs. Some communities including Los Angeles, Washington D.C., Seattle, New York and Philadelphia, have begun to take action.

Neighborhoods full of street people, like Los Angeles' Skid Row, with its abandoned businesses and dilapidated rooming houses, have become commonplace in urban America. The misery seen here is comparable to that in some underdeveloped nations. Street people sleep where they drop, in tattered clothes and bundled feet. Their possessions are strewn around them. They eat garbage. Tuberculosis and lice are endemic. Worse, they are preyed upon by unscrupulous merchants and marauders. Twice a month teenage gangs descend to reap welfare checks.

Dr. Rodger K. Farr of Los Angeles County Department of Mental Health estimates that 10,000 homeless live there. Another 5,000 come in for the winter.

"Maybe Skid Row used to be an alcoholic haven," Dr. Farr says. "Not any more." Added to the alcoholics and drug abusers, the children of broken homes, are severely mentally-ill people, people who cannot take care of themselves.

Released from state mental hospitals all over the country, they migrate west because they are offered no place in their own communities.

Mental illness — not addiction — rivals the lack of low-cost housing as the main problem on Skid Row, Farr says.

True, the homeless "Sunbirds," people who come from other states during the winter, have it a little easier than street people in colder climates. In New York, where 61-year-old schizophrenic Rebecca Smith froze to death on the street this winter, the Community Services Society estimates 60 percent of the city's 36,000 homeless are former patients of mental institutions.

Farr is convinced 90 percent of Skid Row women and 75 percent then deny those that are here.

Is this right?

Taxes. Another evil that confronts people in middle and low income brackets.

Has anyone figured out how many times our money is taxed? Income tax, FICA, amusement tax, sales tax, gasoline tax, cigaret tax, hidden tax, inheritance tax, housing tax, school tax, then add all the money that the lottery brings in.

Blame of our ills are placed on employees' high salaries. As a result they are made to give up some of their concessions so that they can continue to work.

Is someone going to step in and help them when they can't pay their bills or lose their homes?

Is small business given any assistance to continue?

Farmers are quitting in droves. Government stepped in and told them they could not grow certain things and they were paid for this then, the government ships all kinds of foodstuff overseas.

Why did they interfere with the farmer?

And the beat goes on and on.

America, where did we go wrong?

America—where did our people go wrong?

America has fallen on hard times. The figures, percentages are floundered about to hide this fact, or ease the conditions that really exist. Lies don't help people who are hungry. A false sense of security. That's Mr. Reagan.

The result of inflation is real. Programs are cut.

One begins to feel inflation when buying — if you are working — the price is out of reach.

How can a country, and a President, foresake the plight of the people? Isn't it sadistic that progress is being reverted? Where are we heading, America?

We have industry and businesses going bankrupt. Farmers are giving up. Transportation is at a standstill. Roads falling apart. Crime rampant. Youth disenchanted. Home foreclosures. Educational standards lowered. The healthy climate that once was progressive America's pride disintegrating. And we have a President who turns his back on us.

Humanomics has to be brought into the fore. Social Security should be revamped I agree — back to what it was intended for. Strictly for retirement purposes.

Welfare, health aid, human services should continue to help those in need. We reach out to distant shores and offer assistance of all kinds —

A love story

By TOM MOORADIAN
Managing Editor

They had been married for 75 years. He was a prominent attorney; she, with her milk-rose complexion and ebony hair, a beautiful woman.

He had practiced law when Detroit was just beginning to industrialize; Ford was in Highland Park and Dearborn was one stretch of farm and trees.

And, as a prominent lawyer he had accumulated wealth. Their lives were filled with beauty and splendour. She would entertain and some of the most prominent men and women of the country would visit their Birmingham home.

There were children ... two or maybe three. I'm not sure. And they raised them to respect people, for people, even with all the flaws, made us what we are or were.

And in the twilight of their union, she became ill. For the past three years she was incoherent. Living, he would say, just for him.

Then cancer struck him, and time ran out. Nurses took over their many-roomed mansion and he was confined to the upper rooms, barely having the strength to visit his wife of 75 years. And when he did, she couldn't answer his questions.

Sometime last week it happened. He could barely move. His nurse realized that the end was near. "If you can hear me, squeeze my hand," she said.

He did.

"Do you want me to get Mrs. ***?" the nurse asked.

He again squeezed her hand.

The nurse left the room, and quickly moved down the stairway. She went into Mrs. *** room and said that her husband would like to visit with her. This slender woman who had been unable to communicate for over three years appeared to sense what was happening.

Her penetrating eyes did not question the nurse, but she slipped her hands into hers and the two made their way up the stairs.

In a few moments the two lovers were reunited. They looked at each other. Her splendid hair had turned white but the face remained as beautiful as ever.

He took one long, lingering look and then said: "I love you."

And she replied: "I love you too, dear."

His eyes slowly closed.

Death separated these two lovers.

indictment of our inability to understand, or deal with this segment of our community," Farr added.

He bitterly recalls a woman who had a large, open sore atop a huge tumorous cancer. "She came into the Downtown Women's Center, a storefront mission, after having bathed in lye. She thought it would help. She would not permit us to take her to the doctor," he said.

That storefront mission is the newest on Skid Row, the first for women. Founded by Mrs. Jill Helverson, a former social worker, it offers food, clothing and daytime shelter to about 500 women a year. "What you see here is real luxury," Farr told me. "The women built the show-er themselves."

Here, the doctor runs one of three weekly therapy groups on Skid Row. It is popular with bag ladies, those itinerant gypsies who carry all their possessions in shopping bags.

Theatre crowd has improved

EDITOR — A little over a year ago I wrote a letter to your newspaper complaining about the rowdiness at the State Wayne Theatre.

Well, I thought if I could write a letter to complain I could also write a letter to praise the theatre's management.

My wife and I attended a movie there recently and there was a packed house. The conduct of the crowd, mostly consisting of teenagers, was exemplary. My congratulations to the management of the theatre — they deserve accolades.

Also, it was very nice to see such a large group of well behaved young people.

On birth control, parents & teens

EDITOR — I am strongly opposed to the currently proposed rule for federal family planning clinics to notify the parents of teens who receive medical methods of birth control.

Although the purpose of this rule is ostensibly to encourage family involvement in teens' experience, as a nurse in public schools, and also as a parent and concerned member of my community, leads me to the conclusion that teens will be deterred from seeking the birth control that they need to prevent unwanted pregnancies.

Teens already have a difficult time making the decision to contracept; many of them say they hesitate getting medical contraceptive methods for fear of their parents' reprisal.

Therefore, this rule appears to be a move to discourage responsibility on the part of our young people.

I am strongly in favor of families communicating about sexuality; however, such communication must take place when children are young.

Regulations such as this will not promote family communication where none has existed previously. Secretary Schweiker has twisted the intent of the law in proposing this regulation which is ultimately punitive of teens.

Van Buren voters great

EDITOR — To the taxpayers of the Van Buren School District, let me say this: congratulations on your stand to keep our schools open and renewing the mills in order to do so.

We are proud to be known as a community that votes "Yes" for our children, our schools, and the future.

Thank you for the strength and unity that brought you out in a snow storm to vote for and support the good public school system that we have here and a vote for education that we, as Americans, believe in.

City planning talks depressing

EDITOR — The meeting of the Westland City Planning Commission on April 6, 1982, was a depressing example of city government at its worst.

The 500 residents who attended the meeting left feeling very disappointed that their appeal was denied and that their city planners are more concerned with their own interest than the interest of their community.

The residents voiced their opposition to a site plan for an amusement park on Merriman Road between Ann Arbor Trail and Warren Road.

The chairman of the Hawthorne Valley Citizens Committee expressed a public apology to the commissioners for telephone calls that they received at work and home from anxious citizens; however, this apology was not accepted by Mr. Miller, Mr. Gipson, and Mrs. Ziedman who continually referred to these phone calls through the course of the meeting.

These three commissioners voiced their opposition to getting phone calls from residents; they called it harassment.

The residents are having a hard time understanding the problem; they thought they could contact the people who represent them. The chairman, Mr. Miller, repeatedly warned the citizens that the meeting would be closed if there was any disruptive behavior. He and Mr. Gipson attempted to incite the residents with inflammatory remarks yet the 500 plus residents remained quiet and restrained. It was Mr. Miller and Mr. Gipson who indulged in a temper tantrum over the telephone calls they had gotten.

Mrs. Ziedman stated before and after the meeting that she was originally opposed to the Westworld project but she was going to vote for it because of the phone calls. I say to Mrs. Ziedman, if you don't want to hear from the public, then don't serve the public.

The citizens of Westland deserve planners who will truly plan the development of the city. Mr. Miller, Mr. Gipson, and Mrs. Ziedman are not fit to serve this community.

Wake up, taxpayers

EDITOR — As a concerned taxpayer I would like to see my tax dollars (and there are many of them) used to benefit all in this school district.

In light of the hard economic times we are experiencing, here in Wayne-Westland, the state and nation-wide, I think it was uncalled for to give Wayne-Westland teachers a 2-year extension on their contract in October of '81 when it didn't even expire until September of '82; with a 7-9 percent raise in each year. (I'm not against teachers making a fair wage but!)

It has been the practice lately of some administrators to compare the teachers contract to the newly negotiated Ford-UAW contract.

I myself cannot see the comparison. First of all the Ford contract was opened early to take away from its workers. The teachers contract was opened early to give them a 7-9 percent raise in these times when not only Ford but G.M., city and federal, grocery workers etc. are giving concessions.

The statement was even made by an administrator that the Ford workers got profit sharing as a trade-off, the teachers don't have it. First of all, the Wayne-Westland school district is not a profit making company (is it?).

Second of all neither has Ford Motor Company been in the last couple years. If there are no profits to share what kind of a gain is that? Then there was comparison on cost of living, the teachers is deferred until July when they receive a lump sum, which then becomes part of their regular pay. The auto workers gave up 3 quarterly COLA increases. These 3 increases are lost to the auto workers not deferred until a later date. They will be reinstated next year periodically. I'm sorry but I just don't see much comparison in fact, I see a big difference between the two.

Now may I ask how many of the taxpayer out there are out of a job completely? I say it's about time we banded together to complete the RECALL of the 5 board members (Arbour, Rusnock, Batterson, Marshall and Barrett) who approved this contract. It's time the taxpayer united together (TUT).

On Van Buren board meeting

EDITOR — The appalling actions of a minute group of Van Buren Township residents are disruptive to township business.

These individuals, by innuendos, misinformation, statements bordering on the slanderous, are undermining the position of the Van Buren Township Board.

These individuals, who are intelligent, knowledgeable adults should use their energies for the good of the community, not for its disruption.

We hope, that, before they "break the back" of local government, they "wise up" and stop acting like recalcitrant children.

If not "Heaven Help" Van Buren Township.

It's week for volunteers

EDITOR — National Volunteer Week (April 18-April 25) gives us at Living Center an opportunity to pay public tribute to a special group of people who unselfishly give their time to make our residents happy.

All too often, we get involved in what we're doing and forget to show our appreciation to our volunteers who work quietly behind the scenes. All year long, they help with residents' activities and visit our patients on a one-to-one basis. They give extra companionship and love. To each resident, they are a special friend.

Now, during National Volunteer Week, the residents and staff at Living Center would like to let our wonderful volunteers know how great they are.

We extend a warm thank-you to each of them.

Reflections

Mothers on wash days

HEMET, CALIF. — I was sitting in front of the television waiting for the weatherman to come on and let us know when sunny California is going to become sunny again. Outside the patio doors, water was dripping to the patio and up from the green grass, water was spurting from the automatic water sprinklers which didn't know the day had already been turned on.

A commercial showed and half caught my interest until it dawned on me that commercial was about as turned around as any commercial can possibly be. Actually, I think I'm going to write to the networks and tell them that because I am the mother of six kids I could write a commercial depicting real life.

The scene which had caught my fancy was the one in which a mother is happily working in her laundry room. (Right there it is all screwed up. No one works happily in a laundry room, do they?) And in comes her son who has recently gotten his own pad. In his arms are a bundle of dirty, dirty clothes.

And he wants his mother to do them for him. He is willing to help. In fact, he is almost ready to drop a dirty T-shirt into the washing machine when his mother grabs it and shows us how really dirty it is, but how "mmmm detergent" can make it come clean. And it does. And the son is awe-struck!

"Gee, mom," he says, "you are wonderful."

Now at MY house, things like that don't happen. My kids coming home from their own pads, or even if they are just coming down from upstairs, might find a happy mother, but not in the laundry room.

My kids mother might suggest she do their laundry, but only because she knows she won't get any takers. Somehow, somewhere along the path of growing up, my kids got the idea they can do anything better than their mother.

Take for instance one day a few weeks ago. My youngest came screeching down the stairs.

"Who washed my jeans?"

"I did," I told her without thinking, since I was reading a romance.

"Motherrrrr, how many times have I told you never, ever touch ANY of my clothes with your washing machine."

"They were on the floor in

front of the washing machine," I told her. "I thought I might as well drop them in and surprise you."

"So you drop them into a load of stuff being bleached?"

"I did?"

"Mother, don't ever, ever wash any of my clothes again. Promise?"

"I won't," I promised.

And then I went back to my romantic novel, secure in the thought that my kids will always be able to find a happy mother, but not in the laundry room.

cards into little tiny pieces.

Before long, though, after you've stopped using them for a while, and you discover that parting with cash over a counter is a whole lot better than parting with it over a payment envelope, you realize that what you're really feeling is freedom.

You can stop at the pump-your-own gas stations now, instead of having to pay full price at the station honoring your credit card.

You can comparison-shop at every store now, instead of just at the stores you had credit cards for.

You can thumb your nose at credit-happy salespeople.

And you can take that extra five to fifty dollars a month you were paying out in interest and apply it toward tangibles, instead.

And one summer day you'll find yourself sitting beside someone's paid-for pool talking about something else besides how much last Christmas is still costing you — and you'll try to remember how long it's been since you charged something.

And then will come a time, believe it or not, when you won't be able to remember.

Goodbye to credit and crazies

Remember a few years ago when the big status symbol was a leather credit card holder that accordion-folded and fit into ones pocket or purse?

Remember how, when a person wanted to use it, he or she would hold the thing up in the air, let loose the accordion and it would unfold, as if by magic, to reveal dozens of credit cards?

And remember how those watching who had only one or two credit cards would groan in anguish and decide that those were people not to like?

Well, thanks to the second-most disastrous economic era any of us have ever been faced with, those people with the accordion-folded credit cards have suddenly folded their holders and silently stole away.

It just goes to show that there is some good in every evil — including economic disasters.

We all went credit-crazy for a while. And why not? We found we could have almost anything by simply signing on the dotted line.

Credit cards were being sent through the mail like free samples. Everybody was a V.I.P. to the banks sponsoring the cards. I once knew a man who had filed for bankruptcy and was losing his house for non-payment. He got a credit card from the very bank that had foreclosed on his mortgage. The letter accompanying the credit card started out, "Dear preferred Customer."

Every store, every business had (and still has, I think) an "EX Payment Plan" or an "Instant Credit" policy.

"Gee, I like it but I can't afford it right now" was met with, "Can you afford $10 a month? That's all it takes, you know." Saying you couldn't afford it was music to a salesman's ears.

And, after all, "Buy now, pay later" seemed the sensible thing to do. If you saved for a year to buy something, that something might cost twice as much by the end of that year. But if you bought it now and paid for it over a year's time, you got to use it all that time for practically nothing.

Pretty soon, "charging it" became a way of life. The salespeople didn't like handling cash. They treated you better if you said "charge it." If you insisted on paying cash, they insisted on lecturing you on the convenience of credit cards. They put credit applications in your bag when you weren't looking.

Credit-carding was crazy — but everybody did it. When summer rolled around we were still paying for what we bought at Christmas. We'd sit around somebody's installment-payment pool lamenting about how long it took us to pay for Christmas — but the screwy thing was that there was nothing shameful about it. That's just the way it was. And nobody thought to change it.

We even knew people who paid out so much in monthly payments, they often didn't have enough left for food. Their solution was to pay five times as much for the makings of a meal at a department store deli, where they could charge it.

The interest rates didn't bother us crazies, either. Eighteen percent a year seemed like a lot, but paying one and a half percent to borrow money for a month wasn't too much to pay. If we paid it off within a month, that is.

And there are probably people who actually do that — pay off the balance within a month. I've never known any of them, myself.

Credit-card-crazies tend to stick together. They are more comfortable around people who do things like charging ice cream cones, even when they have the cash to pay for them.

It makes the fact that they've charged a box of Kleenex a little more bearable. (You need Kleenex, you don't need ice cream cones.)

But eventually we all come to terms with the fact that when it gets to that point, it is an addiction. Some come to terms on their own — others wait for the credit companies to come to terms for them.

When it happens, there is no greater — or scarier — feeling in the whole world to a credit-card-crazy than the feeling that comes when one is cutting up credit

Our Present, Past & Future

*Our present, past and future
Make up our destiny
How we think and act
Will fashion what will be*

*Every moment that we live
Deserves consideration
Each and every action spent
Is future's destination*

*Not always do we know
Where the best of plans will lead
But what we may decide to do
Will justify the deed*

*Whatever lies in store
The greatest seer can't know
Though how we stand at present
The past can clearly show*

*Our present past and future
Are this day well locked within Concern yourself with where you are
And not what might have been.*

April

*I love the month of April
With its rainbows in the rain
Dripping colors from the sky
Like some huge candy cane*

*Penetrating 'neath the ground
To nourish flowers there
Sprinkling each with red and blue
When they come up for air*

*The winds of March have ceased to blow
The winter's frost away
Now the ground is soft and damp
To bloom another day*

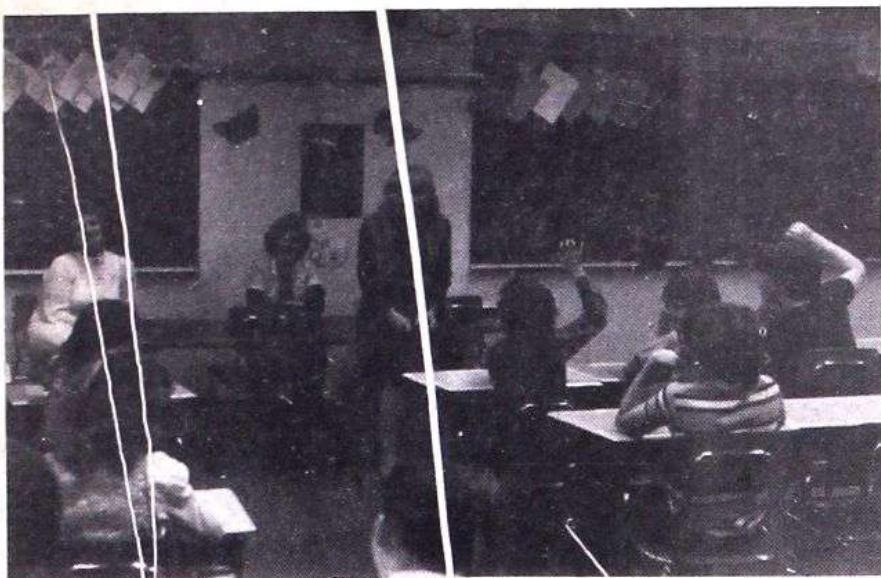

*The morning dew on sprouting buds
Like tiny diamonds shine
The Earth with greenish tablecloth
Allows sweet spring to dine*

*She licks each little blade of grass
With sunshine's warmth and light
And strokes each sprout with breezes
That will rest them through the night*

*April with its rainbows
In the rain of springtime's cheer
Will cover all the flowers
That we know will soon be here*

'Silly question?'

So that they WILL ask silly questions when they appear on television, Mrs. Gaye McGinnis (teacher), Mrs. Lorraine Wilkerson (parent), and Esther Frank, associate producer of WDIV (Channel 4) exchange dialogue with Hale Creek sixth grade students about appearing on the TV program "Ask A Silly Question," scheduled for local viewing at 11:30 a.m., Sat., April 17.

Hale pupils to star' on 'silly' TV show

Hale Creek students in Mrs. Gaye McGinnis' sixth grade class will "star" in the April 17 television program, "Ask A Silly Question."

Students throughout the metropolitan Detroit area are selected to be a major part of each week's Saturday telecast, viewed at 11:30 a.m. These students will take a field trip to Channel 4 studio, see the behind the scenes television production, enjoy a lunch and tape the broadcast.

Student involvement is the key ingredient in local children's programming at WDIV (Channel 4), according to Mrs. McGinnis.

Ask A Silly Question, which airs Saturdays at 11:30 a.m. and Sundays at 6:00 a.m., is an excellent example of a program that is designed for and about kids. The weekly, half-hour program provides a chance for kids to take an active role in the programs they watch. Hale Creek students will be seen April 17 and 18.

The concept behind "Ask A Silly Question" is to let children participate through the presentation of riddles, book reviews, opinions, hobbies and answers to thought provoking silly questions.

The children who perform on the program, as well as those who watch at home, are able to develop their creativity and stimulate their imagination while learning more about their peers.

Simultaneously, it teaches both the viewers and the participants that just by being themselves, they are stars!

Each week, through the cooperation of numerous school districts, a group of 25 to 35 elementary age children are selected to take part on the program.

This communication channel, between educators and broadcasters has created a solid foundation from which "Ask A Silly Question" can make an important and worthwhile contribution to children's programming, school officials say.

And that's not all. Throughout Detroit and the surrounding metropolitan suburbs there are a lot of kids who are having a wonderful time just being themselves and being stars at the same time.

The program is produced by Laurie Oberman. Esther Frank is the associate producer and Henry Maldonado is the executive producer.

Agency seeks input from elderly

The Wayne-Metropolitan Community Services Agency will conduct a regional advisory council meeting at 7:00 p.m., Monday, April 19, in the Canfield Recreation Center, 1801 N. Beech Daly, Dearborn Heights (just South of Ford Road).

The residents of Romulus, Belleville, Van Buren, Inkster, Redford, Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Garden City, Plymouth, Plymouth Twp., Livonia, Northville and Northville Twp. are invited to attend and become members of the advisory council.

The purpose of the advisory council is to: •Represent the low-income, elderly and physically handicapped;

•Make their needs known to Wayne-Metro's Board of Directors and to local public officials.

The agency is funded by the federal departments of Labor and the Community Service Block Grant Program, and by the State of Michigan, Bureau of Community Services to provide home heating bill payment assistance, emergency energy aid, employment training, and job placement services.

The agency is also one of the several that are in charge of the distribution of surplus cheese in the out-county area.

Area households included in job survey

A sample of households in this area will be visited by the Bureau of the Census interviewers during the week of April 19-24, to conduct the Bureau's monthly survey of employment and unemployment. Robert G. McWilliam, Director of the Bureau's Regional Office in Detroit, announced today.

Households in this area are part of a sample of 71,000 across the country scientifically selected to represent a cross section of all U.S. households.

The monthly survey is conducted for the U.S. Department of Labor and provides a continuous record of activity in the labor force.

The February survey indicated that of the 109.2 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 99.6 million were employed. The Nation's unemployment rate was 8.8 percent after declining to 8.5 percent in January.

Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept strictly confidential by law and the results are used only to compile statistical totals.

Antique jewelry sale begins

The "look of yesteryear", popular in jewelry today, is captured in the large collection of estate, antique reproduction and antique pieces at Orin Jewelers, 29317 Ford Road, Garden City.

They are part of the special collection featured by Orin Jewelers that will be on display and offered for sale from April 14 to April 24 according to Orin J. Mazzoni, Jr., vice-president.

"The popularity of 19th century design in jewelry is making a comeback that is unmistakable," Orin said. "It is evident in every type of jewelry piece: Clips, pins, rings, bracelets, necklaces, pendants, watches, and accessories, every kind of jewelry item used in personal adornment."

One of the strong "old-time" influences evident is the use of enamel trim in pins, pendants, and earrings, to accent diamonds and colored stones. Another 19th century trend is carried forward in yellow gold rings and pendants set with small round and baguette diamonds.

Reproductions in the collection will also feature a variety of gemstones such as amethyst, garnet, carbuncles, opals, turquoise and other cabochon stones, many of them set in conjunction with tiny seed pearls in pierced setting.

Antique jewelry pieces shown include silver and gold creations, many with precious colored gemstones, from India and Ceylon and jade pieces from Burma and China.

The Estate pieces in the group will include a number of jewelry pieces with diamonds set in platinum. Diamond-studded watches, some with diamond bracelets, are in the collection.

"The vintage of many of the antique articles go back more than 100 years," Orin pointed out. "And the design work found in many of the reproductions simulate the old look so well that it almost takes an expert to tell the difference. The items in our collection are carefully identified to distinguish between the genuine Antiques and the incredible Reproductions."

Among the items, subject to prior sale, are miniature portrait pendants crafted in Florence, enamelled pendant watches from Switzerland, and 18 Karat jewelry and rings from Brazil.

Orin extended an invitation to the public to "come and see the collections either as a prospective purchaser or out of personal interest in the craftsmanship that belonged to masters of the jewelry trade during the 1800's and up to the present."

Sparks absolved of disco

SPARKS
"Angst In My Pants"
(Atlantic)

Rock's dubious duo is back, and with this follow-up to last year's "Whomp That Sucker," their comeback is complete, absolving them from all sins committed during their disco period.

Remembered by most as "The group with the guy that looks like Hitler," Sparks has a sound all their own, with Russell Mael's nifty falsetto playing off brother Ron's (he's the one with the moustache) two-finger piano playing, and songs drenched in wit and wonder (which means some wonder about their wit. Not me.).

For example, check out "Sherlock Holmes," wherein Russell states "Dogs bark and he knows their breed/and knows where they went last night." Any fan of the Basil Rathbone-Nigel Bruce classics can vouch for the plausibility of that remark. On another song of literary/cinematic origin, Tarzan and Jane are "Swinging from the fluorescent lights." Yep, real normal, these guys...

As demonstrated on "Moustache," a song I expect Frank Sinatra to cover within the year. Imagine 'Ol Blue Eyes crooning:

"A lady gets a lotta things
She gets a 20 carat ring
She gets the alimony too
She gets to look good in the nude

But there's one place
Where they've been whipped
Between the nose and the upper lip"

Other highlights include the riff-filled "Instant Weight Loss" (which starts out "Don't play that riff, don't play that riff"), "I Predict" ("Somebody's gonna die, I can't reveal who") and the title cut, which has already garnered some coveted radio airplay. Even what sounds like a really dumb (even for them!) song, "Eaten By The Monster Of Love," redeems itself with these words of wisdom: "My father said 'Don't worry, son! But look at him, he should have run! Eaten by the monster of love.'"

As you've probably noticed, when the lyrics in question are my kind of humor (weird), I have a tendency to quote from them. A lot. So why stop now, eh? I saved the best for last, an introspective little ditty called "The Decline And Fall Of Me."

"Now I stutter, now I dribble
Other than that, I'm lots like I was then
The decline and fall of me
Chart positions, bubbling under,
drowning
And goodbye future Mrs. Mael,
Mael
The decline and fall of me."

They may have fallen, but there's no doubt that they've risen up once again with an album chocked full of melodic hooks that may equal their classic "Kimono My House" LP of eight years ago. Yep, Sparks are back, and when this record's playing, you'll more than likely find yourself hopping to the beat — you see, you'll have angst in your pants.

SIMON AND GARFUNKEL
"The Concert In Central Park"
(Warner Bros.)

The magic is still there. The warm, lush harmonies haven't faded with age, and after years apart, Simon and Garfunkel have joined forces once again and it's as if they'd never been gone.

Classics like "Mrs. Robinson," "Bridge Over Troubled Water," and "The Sounds of Silence" are of course included, as are some of Paul Simon's better known solo numbers like "Still Crazy After All These Years" and "Fifty Ways To Leave Your Lover." One couldn't ask for more than this two-LP set gives you, except maybe to have been among the crowd of over a half-million that saw the reunion at Central Park on September 19, 1981.

Any fan of the duo, or of soft rock in general, owes it to themselves to pick up this album. It leaves no room for disappointment.

Funny look at high society featured at Ford Museum

John P. Marquand's hilarious look at Boston high society, "The Late George Apley," opens April 16 at Henry Ford Museum Theater.

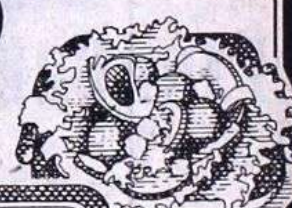

The bittersweet comedy runs Fridays and Saturdays through May 22 at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $4.75 and a dinner-theater program including dinner at Heritage Hall is available for $16.50 with reservations necessary (271-1620, ext. 415).

"The Late George Apley" is a stage adaptation of Marquand's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel by Marquand and comedy writer George S. Kaufman. The play lampoons the pretensions of Boston socialite George Apley and his conflicts with his "rebellious" children.

McDonald's of Canton

Staying on top requires concern for community

By DENNIS NIEMIEC
Feature Editor

Ever wonder what keeps McDonald's at the top of the fast food business year after year?

One visit to McDonald's of Canton (40241 Michigan Ave. east of I-275) will reveal the success behind the Golden Arches.

Owner Bob Card believes in a people-oriented business. That's why you'll find McDonald's of Canton actively involved in community affairs, whether it be donating Ronald McDonald cakes to senior citizens, providing free soft drinks to volunteers at a blood drive, or passing out get-well cards at a local hospital.

And that's why customers will find a portrait of a crewperson of the month hanging on the wall as a tribute to a job well done. These employees — in February it was Jan McKinstry and in March Rick Williams — also receive a $25 bonus for their exemplary work habits.

"McDonald's didn't invent the hamburger," Card explains. "People have made it successful. That and the consistency of the products across the world have kept us ahead of all competitors."

Of course, McDonald's menu needs no introduction. Most of us have grown up on the Big Mac, the Quarter Pounder, the Filet-O-Fish and the like. More recent additions such as the Egg McMuffin, McChicken sandwich and the new Chicken-N-Chips ($1.65) also have gained notoriety.

Extra attractions at McDonald's of Canton are the 25 cent sundaes and the dime (that's right, dime) ice cream cones. Both items are skyrocketing in popularity.

But then again, most of the refreshments sold under the Arches have turned to gold. Founder Ray Kroc's establishment of the McDonald's empire remains an "American Dream" saga, a rags to riches success story (Kroc now serves as senior chairman of the board).

"McDonald's first menu had a regular hamburger, cheeseburger, fries, drinks and shakes," noted Card, who assumed control of the Canton McDonald's franchise outlet some 18 months ago. "Business out west which I think you'll be seeing here within 12 months.

"To be successful we feel our business must pay attention to people and their needs."

Not mere ideals. Card's McDonald's recently received the highest grade of "A" for its quality, service

'McDonald's didn't invent the hamburger. People have made it successful.' —Bob Card really skyrocketed with the introduction of the Big Mac (1968) and Quarter Pounder (1972). Now there are 6600 McDonald's across the world.

"We constantly strive to stay one step ahead of the competition," he added. "The corporation is slow to pursue new products because they must be able to be adaptable to all locations with the same quality. Right now they're experimenting with a new McRib sandwich (pork and cleanliness following a stringent company inspection. Last year McDonald's of Canton was one of but a few restaurants to win the corporation's Landscape Award.

And Card is dedicated to keeping crew turnover to a minimum, offering an extensive training program to acquaint employees with company procedures. Day to day operations are supervised by Al Stothard, the store manager, and assistants Mike Kijek and Jeff Smith. Card formerly served as director of operations for 300 McDonald's outlets in Michigan.

Quality service, combined with such inducements as a $20 million "Quality in the Bag" contest, a birthday party promotion for youngsters spearheaded by Sharon Ezell, and honoring of all coupons has started to produce results for Bob Card and his wife, Linda.

Despite economic hard times, McDonald's of Canton continues to meet previous sales despite the absence of any price increases in the past year. "Sales" translates into such staggering figures as 1500 Big Mac's purchased weekly and 1800 eggs.

All accomplished with well-known, quality food and drinks and a vital concern for the community.

McDonald's of Canton is open at 6 a.m. on weekdays and at 7 a.m. Saturday and Sunday. Closing hours are 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and midnight Friday and Saturday. Breakfast is available until 10:30 a.m. weekdays and 11 a.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Van Buren Chorus to perform April 23

Van Buren Township's Adult and Children's Community Chorus will perform a spring concert with a Country Western theme at 7:30 p.m. April 23 (Friday) at the Belleville United Methodist Church, 417 Charles Street.

Among the featured performers will be: Jim Campbell, fiddle; Dean Payne, string bass; Kim Palmer, drums; Kermit Burke, Banjo; Gwen Ashe, organ, and Sue Sotomayor, piano. Soloists include Marion Cook, Kris Reed, Paul Smith, Glen Davidson, Trish Molinary, Alberta Herman, and children soloists Bo Fowler and David Dubin.

Mary Lou Steger of the newly formed Van Buren Township Arts

Council and the singers will hold a bake sale during intermission to benefit the Community Artist Residency Training program (CART) during the week of April 25. Robert Post, a mime from New York, will entertain citizens throughout the township during the week.

"We are thrilled with the talent and enthusiasm in this community," declared Katherine Rairick, director of the chorus. She noted that proceeds from the concert will defray instrumental and music expenses and also assist in the CART week program.

Tickets are priced at $2 for adults and 75 cents for children. For further information contact Mrs. Rairick at 699-7099.

Self-defense program offered for all age groups

Another session of Jishukan-Ryu Jujitsu will begin April 14 and run for six weeks at a cost of $25 per student in Van Buren Township.

A self-defense program for all ages, Jishukan-Ryu Jujitsu is a Japanese art headed in the U.S. by Ping Shihon, who lives in the Ypsilanti area. Instructors from Ping Shihon's Dojo (studio) will teach the art form in the classes at Van Buren Township Hall. Registrations are being accepted at the parks and recreation office in the township hall, 46425 Tyler. Call 699-2001 for more information.
